

DESIGN READINESS REVIEW

If design is the yin, CMS is the yang. Either way, they are pieces of the same puzzle.

Service Description

So you're about to implement Sitecore, and you want to refresh your website's design at the same time? Smart thinking. However, designing for CMS can present some puzzling challenges. You will need to be mindful of costly road-blocks, anticipate worst-case scenarios, and consider every conceivable page variation; otherwise your fine-tuned design — once implemented into your CMS — could end up looking like an unsolved Rubik's Cube.

Avoid costly rework and ease the design-to-development handoff with Aware's Design Readiness Review. With countless hours of designing for Sitecore under its belt, our creative team will review all design assets produced by your agency or in-house marketing staff and seek out incompatibilities or hidden gotchas. They'll sound the alarm at anything that might de-optimize your site. At the conclusion of this engagement, you'll have a realistic view of how your design will fit together with your CMS and the web at large.

Your customized Design Readiness Review Report will include recommendations in the following areas:

- Flexible design & content expansion
- Required Layouts & templates
- Worst-case scenarios
- Considerations for modularity
- Opportunities for reusability
- Navigation usability and optimization
- Coding guidelines
- Accessibility standards

Deliverable

Design Readiness Review Report (PDF)

Benefits

- Prevent costly rework
- Optimize site manageability
- Experience a seamless transition to development
- Achieve a consistent user experience
- Ensure a scalable design

Contact Us

For more information about Aware Sitecore Specialty Services, contact us at info@awareweb.com or visit us at www.awareweb.com.

